OVERVIEW AND HISTORY:

groSolar is a leading North American distributor and installer of solar energy systems for residential and commercial installations. Founded in 1998, groSolar is a mission driven company dedicated to providing high value products, systems and services that deliver peace of mind through solar energy systems and whole energy appreciation.

Jeff Wolfe, groSolar’s founder, knew early on what he was destined to do. In high school, Jeff experienced the Energy Crisis of 1973 first hand. He decided at that point to dedicate his life’s work to renewable energy production and energy efficiency, advocacy and development. Jeff and his wife, Dori, both engineering graduates from Cornell, have developed groSolar to lead the solar industry in innovation and sound business practice.

Today, with warehouses across the United States, groSolar has the broadest solar distribution network in North America. groSolar also serves all major United States solar markets with either a company-owned installation office or a dealer-partner installation office.

About groSolar

groSolar is North America’s premier distributor, installer and integrator of solar energy solutions for residential and commercial installations. Founded in 1998, groSolar is the largest 100 percent U.S.-owned distribution company in the solar industry.
